

A note on calibration TD Topics

Based on our studies for SO, we are now entering a regime where we are going to be limited in many instances by how well we can calibrate/characterize our instruments. We will need to decrease the uncertainty and increase the speed of calibration both in lab and on the telescopes. This will require TD on some calibration hardware, and will require a well-developed calibration plan that we think about prior to integration, testing, and deployment.